

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

moieties on the surface of the resultant particles can be used for attachment of biologically active molecules, thus allowing selective separations and analytical assays to be performed.

Distinguishable subsets of microspheres can be constructed based on fluorescent intensities, and separations can be affected based on variable degree of magnetic content.

10 DC: #181020 v1 (3V_C01!.DOC)

SECRET